Dear Attorney General,

I write in relation to Corrective Services NSW response to the State Coroner's Annual Deaths in Custody/Police Operations Report 2023. I understand the Report will be tabled in Parliament today. It appears there has been a miscommunication between Corrective Services NSW and my ministerial office resulting in my response and the progress report, dated 14 December 2023, not being received by your office or the NSW State Coroner.

I have attached the omitted material for your consideration and discussion with the State Coroner's Office. I would be grateful if you could explore what options may be available to include the updated information from CSNSW for inclusion or attachment to the Annual Report.

Sincerely,

22-5-24

16-Aug-23	SH	Non-publication orders SH died on 19 January 2020 at Cessnock Correctional Centre, NSW from hanging. His death was intentionally self-inflicted while he was in the lawful custody of Corrective Services NSW.	Joint Recommendation - Justice Health and CSNSW	To the Chief Executive Officer, Corrective Services New South Wales and to the Chief Executive Officer, Justice Health, and Forensic Mental Health Network New South Wales: I recommend that Corrective Services NSW and Justice Health NSW conduct inter-agency consultations and implement measures aimed at further improving the provision or accessibility of information to families and next of kin who are concerned about an inmate's mental health.	Supported	In Progress	The Corrective Services NSW (CSNSW) website has been updated and now provides details about how family members can contact relevant Correctional Centres to express their concerns about an inmate's mental health. New policy and procedures have been drafted in the Custodial Operations Policy and Procedures (COPP) section 6.3 'Inmate health needs' outlining the action to be taken by staff when receiving health information about an inmate including information relating to a mental health issue or information about a risk of self-harm or suicide. CSNSW is consulting with stakeholders, including Justice Health & Forensic Mental Health Network on the proposed amendments. CSNSW is undergoing a complete review of the families handbook which will include clear instructions about how to contact a correctional centre in order to provide information about an inmate's medical health including mental health in urgent or important circumstances.
