

Domestic and Family Violence Programs

IDFVS and SHLV Expansion

DVNSW Information Session

Anne Campbell Deputy Secretary,
Strategy, Policy and Commissioning

10 September 2024

We acknowledge Aboriginal people as the First Nations Peoples of NSW and pay our respects to Elders past, present and future.

We acknowledge the ongoing connection Aboriginal people have to this land and recognise Aboriginal people as the original custodians of this land.

What we will cover today

NSW Domestic and Family Violence Emergency Package program expansions

- Specialist Workers for Children and Young People
- Staying Home Leaving Violence
- Integrated Domestic and Family Violence Services

The approach to expansion of these programs

NSW Domestic Violence Emergency Package

Specialist Workers for Children & Young People

Staying Home leaving Violence

Integrated DFV Service

NSW Domestic Violence Emergency Package

$245m over 4 years

Crisis response $48m over 4 years

- Expand SHLV statewide – additional 37 LGAs will be covered
- Expand IDFVS – additional 6 services will commence
- Increase Aboriginal led delivery of DFV responses through processes of community co-design

Early Intervention $48m over 4 years

- $48M to secure and increase funding for workers who support children accompanying their mothers to refuges – Specialist Workers Children and Young People (SWCYP).
- Extend 21 existing contracts to 2026 in line with existing SHS contract timeframes
- Expand program to an additional 10 services

Specialist Workers for Children and Young People : $48 million over four years

- Extension of existing 21 contracts and expansion to an additional 10 contracts, to 30 June 2026.
- The expansion will mean the program is able to support children and young people in over 32 refuges, delivered by more than 55 specialist workers. This includes 22 regional locations.

Identifying the 10 services for SWCYP expansion

- To receive funding, services needed to be already operating at least 1 DCJ funded women's refuge.
- The refuges selected were based on the highest proportion of Aboriginal Children and Young People CYP.
- Aboriginal women and Children and Young People impacted by domestic and family violence are 35 times more likely than non-Aboriginal rates.
- All 21 contracts have been extended and 10 new sites contracts are being executed

Principles guiding SHLV and IDFVS Expansion

Deliver service expansion quickly to meet high areas of need and demand

Varying existing contracts and extending LGA coverage for some providers

Increase Aboriginal Service delivery

Thorough market analysis, single invited tender opportunities and funding allocated for 3 codesigned projects and family violence models

Financial modelling for LGAs is weighted for demand

Procurement amounts for LGA coverage for SHLV will differ. Evidence based decision making based on data.

Longer contracts for Aboriginal service providers and new providers

Contracts to 2031 to align with recommissioned DFV services (4+ 2 years)

Open the market to new providers through competitive procurement

Fair and equitable process. New providers must have DFV expertise and local footprint

DFV Emergency Package –SHLV and IDFVS

Scope of the expansion funding

This funding package is about expanding the availability of DFV programs to areas they are not currently available across NSW rather than providing a program funding uplift.

- ✓ DCJ is aware of the need for additional funding for SHLV program due to increased demand and cost of security upgrades and use of brokerage.
- ✓ The program area is reviewing brokerage use and increased costs of security upgrades to better understand the additional resources needed across the program.
- ✓ Expansion will prioritise rural and regional locations for new IDFVS services with a whole of family approach
- ✓ Selected locations consider more than DFV rates and demand, there has been significant supply analysis to understanding the changing provider landscape
- ✓ Phased approach over 4 years will allow consultation and planning for Aboriginal models for delivery in gap areas
- ✓ DCJ will work directly with ACCOs identified in market analysis who are equipped with the skills and capacity to deliver DFV specialist services.

Evidence based expansion
approach

LGAs with High rates of DV

- 46 LGAs have DV rates over +50% the State average

- 11% of the NSW pop live in these LGAs

- They account for 24% of all DV assaults

SHLV - Achieving coverage with a mixed procurement approach

Current coverage delivers SHLV in 91 LGAs.

Key service gaps in Western, Murrumbidgee, Southern and Northern Sydney districts.

DCJ will increase coverage through variations to existing services and procurement for new contracts covering 25 LGAs.

Procurement approach is based on

- Market analysis and district recommendations
- Geographical extensions will result in quick expansion
- Open competitive tender where there is a market and sector capacity to respond
- Single invited tender where the market analysis indicates this is the most appropriate approach.

Long contracts to 2031 for newly established services (4 + 2 years).

SHLV – Contract extensions to 2026 and procurement of new services

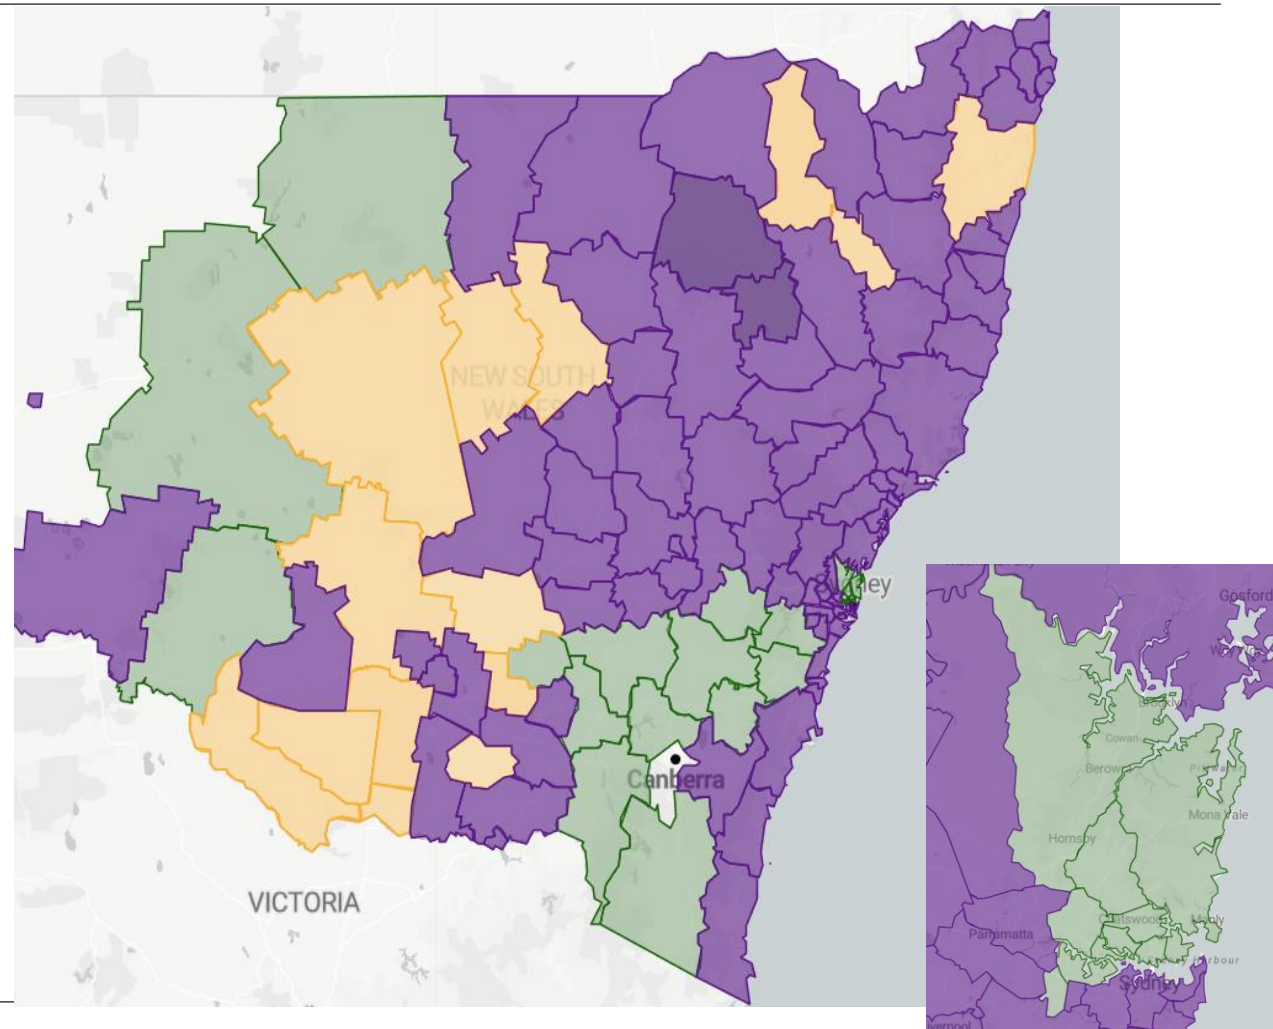

Existing services are delivered through 39 contracts ending June 2025.

DCJ will extend all current contracts by one year to align in 2026 with the recommissioning approach for DFV programs including women’s refuges and SWCYP.

Most contracts will be extended with no changes.

Some contracts will have changes to LGA coverage and receive expansion funding to increase service delivery to neighbouring LGA where they already have a DFV service capacity and footprint.

14 new SHLV contracts will be procured through open and limited tender.

Integrated Domestic and Family Violence Service (IDFVS)

- IDFVS is a multi-agency response to prevent the escalation of domestic and family violence among high-risk groups and targeted communities.
- This smaller program works to provide a unified approach to support and navigate the support system through 11 services across NSW.
- IDFVS can work with the whole of family, including victim-survivors who may still be living in a violent relationship, children as clients in their own right and the person using violence.
- IDFVS can provide services to women still living with violence, building their capacity for safety over time, and providing flexible service delivery driven by local context and client needs.
- 6 new IDFVS services in regional locations will be procured through open tender.

IDFVS – was last evaluated in 2018

Breakdown of the 4907 adults clients of the IDFVS

- Evaluation recommendations and consultation with IDFVS services, the DFV sector and Districts have indicated that there is high demand for services that can work with the whole of family.
- Links to therapeutic support and behaviour change programs for the person using violence are a key part of the response.

DCJ Program Delivery and Integration will be revising the IDFVS program service specifications to align with a more evidence based, whole of family response, while still providing a place based and local response.

- The evaluation suggests that the IDFVS program delivers benefits for clients experiencing domestic and family violence (DFV) including:
 - filling a major gap in the service system by providing services to women still living with violence, building capacity for safety over time
 - substantial improvements in client wellbeing and high levels of client satisfaction
 - flexible service delivery driven by local context working to meet client need.
- The report includes recommendations for program improvement related to systems and data, building workforce capacity and strengthening community education activities.

Culturally responsive family violence models

Staying in Community, Leaving Violence

Aboriginal models of SHLV and IDFVS

Part of the DFV Emergency Funding Package will be allocated for the design and delivery of culturally responsive Aboriginal DFV models that achieve the SHLV and IDFVS outcomes in a culturally safe way.

Research shows that for Aboriginal communities, successful family violence programs include community involvement in service planning; engagement and relationship building; consideration of cultural factors; integrated service delivery; planning for long-term sustainability; and having a holistic focus with flexible, trauma-informed approaches. (AHURI 2019)

DCJ experience demonstrates that working with specific communities, with dedicated funding and collaborative service design takes longer in the planning but is more successful in the outcomes for the service. (Aboriginal Homelessness Sector Growth program)

DCJ will partner with Regional Assemblies and Local Decision Making bodies to work in three locations and to undertake codesign activities with the community over 12 -18 months.

Staying Home Leaving Violence

Co-design and pilot of 'Staying in Community, Leaving Violence' model in Western NSW

Over the past 12 months DCJ and Murdi Paaki Regional Assembly have partnered to codesign a family violence model based on lived experience and local evidence for delivery in Bourke.

Foundation Principles

- Founded in Aboriginal culture and world view in relation to family violence.
- Aboriginal women may be unable or unwilling to fragment their identity by leaving the community, kin, family or partners as a solution to violence
- a response focussed on safety planning and accessible, culturally safe crisis housing, on a client led, short term respite basis
- the entire family including the needs of the person using violence - access to culturally safe places for healing, and accommodation.
- the need for SHLV staff to be from community, provided with training and implementation support, and embedding community voice in governance of model.
